

Wendy Araujo is the 100th Anniversary Miss San Antonio!!

Wendy's love for the arts became transparent early on in her high school career, as she was part of her high school's choir for 2 years, and then became a part of her high school's drill team. She is currently attending Texas State University in San Marcos as a junior pursuing her Bachelor of Fine Arts with a teacher certification so that she may possibly one day go back to her high school's drill team and become their director.

Thanks to the inspiring and supportive group consisting of family, friends, directors, etc. and the generosity of the MSAO scholarship, she is now considering double majoring in Psychology so that she may better continue her advocacy in the mental health community.

This is Wendy's first endeavor as a titleholder. Wendy is immensely grateful for her family, friends, classmates, professors, other supportive titleholders, etc. as she embarks on a new journey of servitude, gratitude, and the mission of representing the mental health community by using her first-hand experience on the issue to better address solutions.

She hopes that her Year of Service will not be just a moment, but a movement that she will lead to make sure that San Antonio, The State of Texas and even America realizes that there is no health without mental health, and there should no longer be any stigmatizations towards those affected by Mental Health issues.

Wendy looks forward to representing the San Antonio community at 2023 Miss Texas Competition in June of 2023. In addition, she is excited to be a part of the mission of Fiesta San Antonio's Commission of celebrating San Antonio's rich and diverse cultures. VIVA! FIESTA!!
